He Wants No Compromise and Nothing Less Than Free Silver, but He DOESN'T EXPECT TO GET IT.

He Thinks the World is Surely Drifting Toward Paper.

THE DEPARTMENTS IN HARMONY

On the Mexican Border Troubles, So All of them Declare.

THE WHITE HOUSE GREATLY CRAMPED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—"I want no compromise. I am for free coinage of silver at the present ratio first, last and all the time."

Representative Bland, the veteran silver leader and the Chairman of the House Committee on Coinage, was very emphatic when he delivered himself of these statements this morning.

"I want no compromise at all, but if I could do no better I would probably accept the old one, provided that the maximum amount, $4,000,000 per month, mentioned in that measure, was agreed to be coined. I believe the present law is the best legislation we have had in the interest of silver, and of course, I do not want it to be repealed."

"What do you think of the prospects of silver legislation at this Congress?"

"I am told that an attempt is to be made to repeal or suspend the present law."

"Well, do you think that this attempt will be successful?"

"No, I do not. I don't think such a proposition can get through the House. I think, however, that there is a better chance for it to pass at this session than there will be during the next Congress. There are a number of men who have not been re-elected who may vote independently of the wishes of their constituents, especially as a Democratic administration will soon be inaugurated, which is opposed to free coinage."

"I am for free coinage, and if I cannot get it at this session I shall try to secure it at the next or the earliest possible moment. The silverman law is the nearest we have been to that point as yet. It is proposed to repeal it, but nothing is suggested to take its place. If that proposition was taken at once, it would be a disaster, and when that happens it will not be long before gold, too, is demonetized. With silver demonetized, there would be such a fight for gold among the nations, the highest bidder getting it, that panics would inevitably ensue. Then the people of the country would rise up, take hold of the Government and give those who are grasping for everything in sight, letting the future take care of itself. They will find out their constituents, especially as the world is drifting rapidly to paper money. It will reach that point before long, and I don't know but we will be quite as well off."

THE WEALTHIEST COMMUNITY.

By Strict Attention to Business the Osage Indians Get There.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—Indian Commissioner Morgan has transmitted to the Secretary of the Interior a certified copy of the proceedings of the Osage National Council of Indians in Oklahoma, in which the request is made that the accumulated interest money to the credit of the tribe in the United States Treasury be paid to them per capita at once, and that they may pay their debts incurred in building, fencing, houses, breaking lands, etc. Under the provisions of the act of August 19, 1890, the Osage are now paid $50,000 each quarter, this amount being the interest on their land fund, minus the sum required for educational purposes and for pay of employees.

The records of the Indian office show that there is an accumulated interest fund now in the Treasury to the credit of the Osage amounting to over $800,000, which draws interest. In view of the purposes to which the money is to be applied, the Commissioner recommends that $500,000 be paid to them at once, in addition to the quarterly payments. It is believed that the Commissioner's views coincide with those of the Secretary, and therefore his approval and recommendation is expected. It is said at the Indian Office that this tribe, which now numbers about 1,500 souls, has nearly $2,000,000 in cash to its credit in the United States Treasury, and in addition, owns about 1,400,000 acres of land, valued at least at $5 per acre, which, according to numbers, makes the Osage the wealthiest community of any race in the world.

ALL IS HARMONY.

No Discard Among the Departments Over Mexican Border Matters.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—General Grant, Acting Secretary of War, said to-day that it is absolutely untrue that there is lack of harmony between the Department of Justice and the State and War Departments, growing out of the condition of affairs along the Mexican frontier. He was corroborated in this by Secretary Foster and Attorney General Miller, each of whom was interviewed on the subject. There is, however, considerable speculation as to the object of Captain Bourke's recent visit to Washington, and an effort is being made to give undue importance. It is learned to-day that his mission was strictly a secret one, and that its object would be defeated by its becoming known just at present.

It can, however, be stated positively that Captain Bourke does not carry back to Texas any instructions regarding the plan of campaign, and that all orders on that subject will continue to be issued through General Whelan, the commanding general of the Department of Texas. In fact, that officer has already been given general instructions to pursue a most vigorous campaign along the border, and endeavor, with the aid of the three additional troops sent him, to capture or destroy all persons engaged in the revolutionary movement who are discovered violating the international laws. The details will be left to General Whelan to work out.

NEW MONEY ORDER OFFICES.

There Are 1,400 of Them, but Pennsylvania Gets Only Three.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—About 1,400 postoffices will be designated January 2, 1893, as additional domestic money order offices, to begin business on receipt of books and blanks in the course of preparation, which will be furnished them before January 15.

Of the new money order offices Arkansas will have 10; California, 9; Colorado, 10; Idaho, 2; Illinois, 9; Indiana, 28; Iowa, 31; Kansas, 10; Kentucky, 9; Louisiana, 32; Minnesota, 41; Missouri, 30; Michigan, 2; Mississippi, 14; Montana, 5; Nebraska, 30; Nevada, 6; New Mexico, 11; North Dakota, 26; Ohio, 7; Oregon, 33; Oklahoma, 1; Pennsylvania, 3.

AN OVERGROWN BOGIE

That's What Treasury Officials Denominate the Gold Scare.

UNCLE SAM IS SOLID AS A ROCK.

Gold Needed Abroad and Its Equivalent Comes Lack Here.

THE BIG SURPLUS TO BE SHOWN TO-DAY

SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—Treasury officials are somewhat annoyed at the gold scare, which they say originated in Wall Street for speculative purposes. In the absence of Secretary Foster all inquiries on the subject are referred to William F. MacLennan, chief of the warrant division, who is the financial wizard of the Treasury. Mr. MacLennan does not share the anxiety of some of his associates over the financial situation, and in conversation with the correspondent of THE DISPATCH he gave quite a different view of the condition of the Treasury.

"There seems to be," said Mr. MacLennan, "a lack of information among certain people on the gold question. Every time a large shipment of gold is announced a cry goes up that this country is being depleted of its gold for the benefit of foreign countries. To persons not familiar with the situation it would appear that these shipments of gold simply take that much precious metal or money out of this country, leaving nothing behind in its stead. That is a false impression. For every dollar's worth of gold that leaves this country it gives some back to us in the form of merchandise, redeemed bonds or some other security."

"Why Gold Shipments Are Often Larger."

"It sometimes happens that holders of United States bonds in Europe desire to exchange them for gold. It also happens that foreign countries, desiring to increase their supply of gold, come into the United States and buy it. Such transactions, instead of causing a commotion in financial circles, ought to give confidence in the stability of this Government, for they show that we have sufficient gold to meet our own demands, and can also spare some for shipment abroad."

"This matter," continued Mr. MacLennan, "is over $12,000,000 more gold in the Treasury Department to-day than there was at certain periods last summer. There is something over $124,000,000 in gold now on hand, which is but a few millions less than we had at this time last year. On the 1st of December, 1891, there was $120,000,000 of gold in the Treasury. One hundred millions of that amount are held in reserve to guarantee the outstanding greenbacks, leaving on hand about $24,000,000 of what we call 'free gold,' because there is nothing outstanding against it. Thus, you see, that leaves a comfortable margin for the trade."

"This does not include the $123,000,000 held in reserve for the outstanding gold certificates. When that is added to the $24,000,000, it shows that there is actually $247,000,000 in gold now in the Treasury."

Foster Didn't Mean to Issue Bonds.

Mr. MacLennan ridicules the statement that Secretary Foster proposed to issue a new series of bonds, but was prevented from doing so by the President. The Secretary and Mr. MacLennan have a thorough understanding on all financial questions, and the latter says there is no reason why the Secretary should propose at this time to put new bonds on the market.

With regard to the present condition of the Treasury, Mr. MacLennan says the debit statement which will be given to-morrow will show a balance in the Treasury of something like $120,000,000. The surplus would have been much larger at this time had it not been for the enormous expenditures for pensions during the present month. This has been an unusually heavy month on expenditures in all branches of the service, and the pension appropriation alone amounted to $15,000,000.

In spite of the steady increase in the revenue from customs and internal revenue during the past calendar year the surplus has been kept down by heavy expenditures. Almost every month during the present year has shown an increase in the revenues over the same month in the preceding year. During the present month the receipts were $1,000,000 more than they were for last December.
